

Dollaride's CTAP project will train and electrify the NYC commuter van industry.

Dollaride, a mobility platform based in NYC, is leading the Clean Transit Access Program—a project designed to spearhead the transition to electric transit and the development of an electric vehicle (EV) certified and trained workforce in Brooklyn, New York City. Our proposal prioritizes the transition of current and new driver workforces to EVs, creating a sustainable and skilled workforce for the future.

dollaride