

Next Gen Microinverter

Current microinverters are designed to be located underneath solar panels, which makes maintenance and replacement difficult.

Our idea is to design a microinverter that can be mounted on the front side of the solar panels, making maintenance and replacement significantly easier and more cost effective.